

(Y4U3) Crime and punishment: How has crime and punishment changed over time?

- Key takeaways
1. Attitudes and values about what is a crime and how it should be punished have changed over time.
 2. Suffragettes campaigned for women's suffrage. They were considered criminals and put in prison. Now we celebrate their achievements.
 3. Some actions are still considered crimes, but the punishment is less or more severe.
 4. Other crimes are no longer crimes at all, for example celebrating Christmas.
 5. In the early 1800s, over 200 crimes were punishable by death as people thought this would stop people committing the crimes.
 6. Over the years, the number of crimes punishable by death was dramatically reduced. In 1965, the death penalty for murder was banned in England.
 7. In the 1700s, transportation to the colonies was a popular punishment.
 8. Prisons are a form of punishment, but they now also work to re-educate people who have committed crimes.
 9. We can find out about crime and punishments from a range of sources, depending on the time period.
 10. This includes visiting old prisons, reading newspaper reports and looking at drawings and photographs.

Robert Peel formed the Metropolitan Police force in 1829.
